

The adventures of Lina, Joy & Pili

On a lovely spring morning, Lina the unicorn goes for a walk through the forest.

On her way, she bumps into Pili, a brave lady rabbit dressed in her silky fur.

With her cute little muzzle, Pili is blowing relentlessly over the magical dandelion nestled amongst the trees.

Much too tall to be reached, the big yellow flower remains still despite the little rabbit's efforts to blow away the seeds lying in its center.

It is crucial for Pili to make this operation a success, as those magical seeds have a destiny to fulfill...

They need to reach the sky where they will transform into shining stars that illuminate the forest to provide lighting for the animals of the woods.

Seeing her friend's desperate efforts to make this happen, Lina, a wise and kind unicorn, offers to carry Pili on her back, hoping to get her closer to the dandelion.

In spite of this friendly gesture, the flower remains out of the reach of our little rabbit that still refuses to give up.

A few meters from there, Joy, a chatty and joyful lady dragon, hears the hubbub of the two companions. Curious, she strolls through the the trees to find out where this is all coming from. After only a few steps, she ends up face to face with our two little adventurers on a mission.

Spooked by the sight of the dragon, Lina and Pili jump head first into a flowery bush. Caught off guard by this unexpected reaction, Joy imitates them and dives into the closest fern, keeping an eye on what is happening in the next bush.

- What kind of animal is this ? asks Pili.
- I have never seen such a creature before, answers Pili. Look at the ridge on her head, I'm sure it stings !
- There is only one way to find out, pursues Lina, who seems to have something on her mind....Let's go meet her !
- Are you sure ?! says Pili surprised. What if she hurts us ?
- Well, there is no way for us to know what she is going to do before we even get to know her, answers Lina with her lenedary wisdom. Let's not judge her on her appearance, shall we ? Come !

Bravely, both friends come out of the bush they were using as an armour. Then, with a soothing and reassuring voice, Lina starts talking to Joy and says :

- Dear creature with the majestic ridge, please don't be afraid. We do not know where you come from but we would like to welcome you amongst us.

Moved by this warm welcome, Joy jumps out of her hideout and hurries to introduce herself with plenty of enthusiasm. Witnessing this outburst of friendliness, Lina and Pili fall under the charm of the dragon.

Confident that Joy would be of great help, they tell her all about the mission they are struggling to accomplish.

The clock is ticking and it won't be long before the sun sets, leaving the forest in the darkness for the night. Unless...

Out of the blue, Joy blows her powerful dragon breath over the dandelion while the seeds starts twirling towards the sky in an enchanting dance.

- You see, says Lina, if we had not gotten to know Joy, we would not have made it. Together, we are much stronger !

Forever bonded by this event that also marked the beginning of a friendship meant to last forever, Lina, Pili and Joy get back to roaming the enchanting forest, resting assured that from now on, they will always be able to illuminate the sky, night after night.
