

The adventures of Tiga, Stegi & Ops

On a sunny day, two small dinosaurs are walking across the plain. One of them, an adventurous triceratops, suddenly starts chasing a lovely blue-tinged dragonfly. His friend, a small stegosaurus with a thorny back, tries to follow him, but above all to warn him that he is about to cross the border of an unknown land, bounded by a magical rainbow. Before they know it, the two friends find themselves in the middle of the jungle.

A few metres away, a strange long-necked creature hears the two little dinosaurs bickering. It is a giraffe and it is about to come to their rescue. Surprised to discover these two creatures she had never met before, she hears one of them asking worriedly:

- Where are we?
- You are in the jungle, the giraffe replies. How did you get here?

Suddenly, the little stegosaurus remembers passing under a magic rainbow while following his friend.

With the help of her long neck, the giraffe takes a look at the magical rainbow in the distance and decides to help them get back to their land.

On the road, the two dinosaurs observe fruits and vegetables they had never seen before but which strangely remind them of the colours of the rainbow they have just passed under.

Their curious eyes come across yellow fruits hanging from trees in the shape of a smile; pink balls hanging from long leaves; green clouds growing under their feet and many other strange shapes!

Reading the surprise on the faces of her two new friends, the giraffe explains that each of these fruits and vegetables has a super power with very fun properties!

- This is a banana, she said, pointing to the yellow smile. If you eat it, you will smile all day long! The pink ball, she continues, is a dragon fruit, look at its polka dot flesh; if you eat it, I guarantee you a little bit of whimsy that makes life much more fun!

The two dinosaurs enjoy the story of their friend the giraffe and the fruit and vegetables they taste on the way, which gives them energy!

- And what is this green fruit growing under our feet?» asks the little triceratops.

- Ah, says the giraffe. There's nothing like broccoli to have brainwaves! And if you want to recharge your batteries, I advise you to eat aubergine. If you like the super powers of these fruits and vegetables, you should know that they are also very good for your health!

Amused by these wonderful discoveries, the two companions realise that they have finally arrived at their destination! The rainbow is in sight, and it is finally time to go home to their family. They hope to be able to visit their new friend the giraffe very soon for new adventures in this jungle whose treasures they now know!
